

For The Greater Good.

As the demand increases, so does competition for the pool of funding...

How are you addressing the challenges that Not-for-Profit organizations face in today's economy?

As the demand for your services has increased, so has the competition for a shrinking pool of funding. With fewer dollars to go around, funders are making tough decisions about what they will support. How does a not-for-profit sustain itself today and into the future under those conditions?

It all starts with the highest standards of accountability and transparency. Funders want to know their dollars are in the hands of reliable stewards.

For The Greater Good.

The first and most vital step is to take a hard look at how your not-for-profit organization is portrayed in its financial information and its Form 990. Are you fully transparent with your financial information and compliant with the latest governance requirements and policies? At the same time, are you using those filings to put your organization's best face forward?
